Paris, Oct. 2.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Joseph Ernest Renan, distinguished philosopher and author, died today. On Tuesday last he was driving and caught a severe cold, which peedily developed into congestion of the lungs.

It is said Renan was rational to the ast moment, and when he found death drawing near expressed a wish that he body be interred in the Pantheon. Renan died in the College de France, a little way beyond the new building of the Sorbonne. His children were pres ent at his bedside. No priest attended the dying man.

Terrible Outbreak in a Southern Mexican City.

Mob of 6000 Starving People Loot th City's Granaries—Soldiers Fire Upon the Famished Hordes With Fatal Result.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The Times Democrat's San Antonio special says: Homer Finley, who for the past six years has been in business in the city of Morelia, Mexico, arrived today and gave a vivid account of the famine riot in that city last Sunday. Morelia is the capital of the State of Michoacan, and one of the most beautiful cities of Southern Mexico. There are several thousand poor people on the verge of starvation there, owing to the total failure of crops and scarcity of other food supplies. When famine threatened several months ago, several wealthy merchants of Morelia contracted for a large quantity of corn in the United States quantity of corn in the United States—enough to supply the suffering people. Speculators put up the prices and extorted what little money the poor people had in a short time. For the past two months the suffering has been intense, and many deaths occurred. The streets became the year with beggars, and men, women and children made heartrending appeals for help.

"This was kept up until last Sunday, when the starving hordes organized themselves into a mob, and driven by desperation, began a concerted attack desperation, began a concerted attack desperation, began a concerted attack upon the food stores of the city. Fully 6000 people were in the mob, and the police were utterly powerless to stop them. Two regiments of federal cavalry and one of infantry stationed at Morelia were called out to quell the riot, but this only added to the desperation of the starying people. The solation of the starving people. The sol-diers opened fire and one man was killed and several wounded. The mob looted the granaries and then dispersed. Finley looks for a repetition of the trouble."

THAT FIFTH MOON

Prof. Barnard Writes Concerning Its Discovery.

The Claim of Cartwright of Detroi Declared Absurd.

The New Satellite Only Visible Through the Lick Telescope.

Merry War Raging Among Astron er the Recent Important Dis-coveries Made at the Mt. Hamilton Observatory.

By Telegraph to The Times. SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 2 .- By the Associated Press.] The following com-munication from Prof. Barnard concecaing the discovery of Jupiter's fifth moon has been received by the Mercury: attention has been called to a tele bale dispatch going the rounds of the s to the effect that Mr. Cartwright of press to the effect that Mr. Cartwright of lectroit has presented a claim for the discovery of the fifth satellite of Jupiter, backed up with an amidavit of a startling nature. I have aircady in an article published. September 25, shown the folly of such claims, if for no other reason than for such claims, if for no other reason than for such claims, if for no other reason than for the fact that this satellite can only be seen with the largest telescope of the world. None of these claimants have ever been heard of before in connection with any asstroomical work, good, bad or indiffer-ent. I only notice this claim of Mr. Cart-weight because a statement is made in the dispatch referred to that is as detestable as it is contemptible, and requires a re-ply. The dispatch says: "It would seem apparent that the letters sent to the observatories, at any rate that are sent to the Lick Observatory, directly inspired the discovery of the fifth satellite by Prof. Barnard."

are sent to the Lick Observatory, directly inspired the discovery of the fifth satellite by Prof. Barnard."

As to the dispatch. I would say that, up to the present moment, any letter ever sent to the Lick Observatory by Mr. Cartwright has never been seen or even heard of by me, and I know nothing absolutely of the existence of any, such letter. I have no doubt that every observatory of any consequence in the world has dozens of such letters on its files, together with claims of mythical planets existing within a couple of degrees of Uranus and with a satellite up near the north pole of the heavens, as pointed out by a spot on the star Vega, and the discovery of double canals on Mars with the naked eye. These two latter actually exist. In connection with my statement of the dimensity of seeing this satellite with even a large telescope. I am sure Prof. Young, so well known to everybody, will pardon my quoting from a letter just received from him in reference to the discovery. His instrument at Princeton is the third largest in America. It is a 25-ineh Clark telescope, the name of the maker being a guarantee that it is as perfect an instrument as can be made. He writes: "I tried my best to see the satellite but without success. I also suppose that the instrument as can be made. He writes:
"I tried my best to see the satellite but without success. I also suppose that the telescope at Washington, a 26-inch one, and the 25-inch one at Charlottesville, with mine here. 23-inch, are the only ones in this country which would have the least chance of being able to see the object. I take it for granted that in giving its magnitude as the thirteenth, you mean that it is of the same apparent brightness as a thirteenth magnitude star at that distance from the planet's limb. If so, it is quite a question as to limb. If so, it is quite a question as to whether I could possibly see it. I rather think I could, but am by no means confident think I could, but am by no means conndent that I could."

He writes for the positions of the satellite, and just where and when to look for it. I have not yet heard of the new satellite being seen with any telescope in the world yet, except the Lick 36-inch. I suppose Mr. Cartwright and Mr. Cooley will come to a definite understanding between them which of the two is to have the satellite, the fortunate one then settling his difference with me.

THE ERA OF TUNNELS.

Subterranean Passages at New York Chicago, London and Sarnia.

Confidence of Austin Corbin-A Hint o What Might Be Done With the First Street HIII.

Contributed to The Times.

Mr. Austin Corbin, one of the great capitalists of the United States, is a thorough believer in tunnels as the only possible solution of the rapid transit question in New York city and proper communication between that Brooklyn and Jersey. He approves of deep tunnels through solid rock, with access entirely by elevators. He does owing to the heavy damages to property mecessarily ensuing.
Mr. Corbin was in communication

Mr. Corbin was in communication with the engineers of the St. Clair Tunnell, and as early as 1881, in London, discussed the Severn Tunnel with Sir Daniel Gooch, since deceased, and who was a man of remarkable ability. Notwithstanding his plan for the Severn Tunnel and the severn Tunel Tunnel was considered impracticable, he said he would live to see it built, operated and profitable, and he did.

Mr. Corbin has been much interested in the announcement that the tunnel under Lake Michigan, which is to supply the city of Chicago with pure water, is practically completed. Mr. Corbin's interest is that of a capitalist, and he regards it as something of a coincidence that almost at the identical moment when this announcement was made when this announcement was made a body of commissioners sitting in New York city should have declared in favor of the construction of a tunnel beneath the streets of New York for the pur-pose of providing for a roadbed for a pose of providing for a roadbed for a great railway, system. The Chicago tunnel, which the published report stated is four miles long, is regarded by scientific men and mechanical engi-neers as one of the great engineering triumphs of the age, for there were some who when this project was con-ceived shook their heads doubtfully because of fear of failure.

ceived shook their heads doubtfully because of fear of failure.

The completion of this tunnel and the construction of that splendid subterranean passage which connects the shores of Canada with those of the United States at Sarnia ou the one side and Port Huron on the other, have turned the attention of capitalists to tunnel construction, so that now one of tuanel construction, so that now one of the things talked about when men who possess brains and money meet is that, in the near future, we are to have an in the near future, we are to have an era in which millions of capital are to be expended in the construction of tunnels. The Chicago and the St. Clair tunnels are believed to be the forerunners of a system of tunnels some fifty or sixty miles in length, one link of ners of a system of tunnels some fifty or sixty miles in length, one ink of which is to pass under the waters of New York bay and to connect the city of Brooklyn with the continent at Jersey City, passing directly under the southernmost point of Manhattan Island, on which New York city is located. Then, too, there are to radiate from this tunnel underneath New York city and far away underneath New York city and far away into the country two others, joined at the northern extremity, perhaps, and making a perfect loop beneath the city, thus providing a roadbed for a subter-ranean railway which shall serve the same purpose as the belt lines, estab-lished in several cities, are now doing. It is a prodigious undertaking. Noth-ing in the way of bridge making can coming in the way of bridge making can compare with it, although in the past ten years mighty strides have been made in the science of bridge construction, so that it is now believed to be possible to put a span over the Hudson River between New York city and New Jersey, which shall be nearly a mile in length, and to do it, within five mile in length, and to do it within five years. years. It will require the expenditure of a vast amount of capital, and only men of colossal resources would be abl men of colossia resources would be able to combine together to furnish the money needed. They are ready to do it. They have faith in the modern tun-nel, and Mr. Corbin says that the advances made in tunnel construction are so great that it is now possible to sur after | mount difficulties which ten years age mount difficulties which ten years ago would have seemed to be absolute obstacles in tunnel building, and to do it so quickly that capital would not have to wait for nearly a generation for a return on the investment, as was case when the Brooklyn bridge was built. These improvements are due to some remarkable inventions too technical to be described in a brief statement, but which make transeling through the hardest rock or far down in the bowels of the earth, with a mighty body of water overhead comparatively easy and safe.

safe. Moreover, electric science has fur-Moreover, electric science has fur-nished the means for making great tun-nels of practical use. most as in the daylight. It is estimated that the system of tunnels which will soon be begun, in all probability, underneath New York and probability, underneath New York and the waters adjacent, will require an expenditure of some $60,000,000 to complete, and Mr. Corbin and other capitalists declare that capital will not be timid, but will rather eagerly seek such investment beliance that such investment, believing that the profits which will be returned will be highly remunerative.

Already underneath the Hudson a tunnel has been constructed, which is nearly two-thirds of the way underneath the river. That was begun many years before tunnel building was as highly advanced a science as it now is, and a good many fortunes have been buried in this great hole. It is probable, however, that it will be completed within the next fie years, but is pleted within the next five years, but it will be controlled by English capital.

In spite of the heat a large crowd visited the track during the day, some in order to gain information, others to gratify their idle curiosity, and others still for the purpose of seeing all there was to be seen, it being impossible for them to get away during the week in time to take in the races.

Early in the morning, before the heat became uncomfortable, those of the equine competitors who were already on hand were exercised. Then there was a continuous stream of arrivals to occupy the attention of the visitor, and when matters quieted down somewhat later in the afternoon, an opportunity was offered for a tour through the stables and a glance at each of the equine beauties in its individual stall. But few of the live stock exhibits for the fair proper arrived on the grounds yesterday, the exhibitors preferring apparently to allow their stock to enjoy the peace of their paddock at home as long as possible prior to their entrance into the disquietude of the fair grounds The most noticeable arrivals were herd of Holsteins from the Stockwe farm at Compton, a herd of Jerseys, drove of brood mares and foals and drove of hogs.

The directors of the association evidently overlooked the fact that the number of horses expected was very much larger than the number of stalls on hand, for there were several large on hand. for there were several large-sized kicks registered yesterday after-noon by the late arrivals, who found that no quarters for their accommodation were left. A good deal of trouble and scheming might have been avoided at slight expense by setting a gang of carpenters to work and temporarily carpenters to work and temporarily rigging up some of the old stalls fronting on the track. However, it is pretty generally known that horsemen are chronic kickers and that they ofttimes do so from mere force of habit, and that many have something to do with this may have something to do with this in-

The directors have decided to make a The directors have decided to make a slight change in the programme for tomorrow by exchanging the 2:35 trot for the 2:27 trot, which will not come off until Thursday next.

In addition to the three events already advertised for today's the (opening) programme, a special trot for a $400 purse has been arranged, and with six such contestants as Ben Corbit, Riceta, Tono, Thera, Del Monte bitt, Riceta, Tono, Thera, Del Mont and Bob Mason, Jr., it should prove horse-race from start to finish. TODAT'S PROGRAMME.

THE HORTICULTURAL DISPLAY.

Everything Will Be in Readiness for the Opening This Evening.

Everything will be in shape this evening for the opening of one of the nost unique and attractive horticultural and industrial fairs ever held in this city. Many of the exhibits have to be placed in position this Many of the exhibits will noon, but as every inch of space is assigned that can be spared without imposing on the public comfort, no delay will be occasioned by exhibitors getting properly located. The management has wisely left plenty of aisle room and placed 500 chairs in front of the stage, where persons can sit and enjoy the music and evening's entertainment without becoming foot weary. The combination of fair and entertainment 'is a feature that heretofore has resulted in much discomfort in consequence of crowded exhibits, jammed aisleways and towering displays, that to get a view of stage and within hearing distance was an impossibility. The comfort and pleasure of within hearing distance was an impos-sibility. The comfort and pleasure of the public has been one of the objects throughout the arrangement of both the exhibits and entertainments. There are representative displays from every county of the southern six. The Orange county fair closing Satur-day evening, makes it difficult for her ex-hibitors to repeak and get their goods hibitors to repack and get their goods in place by this evening, but every as-surance is given that they will be on hand.

San Diego sent up five cases of exhibits yesterday. Ventura and Santa Barbara added twenty cases to their display; within the former lot are thirty varieties of fruit from one producer, apples weighing 1 1/4 pounds, pears in clusters of the tj-eight on the branch.

Santa Paula is well represented by the Union Oil Company's display of pe-trolum and its products. It is artistic-ally arranged in a revolving tower that will be handsomely illuminated by electricity.

Pomona sent down twenty-four of her

World's Fair jars of fruit.

Other localities display many articles intended for the great Chicago event of next year, in shape of dried fruit, jellies, jams, etc.

One of the most attractive features for this exhibit is the tapestry picture made by Mrs. J. F. Jenkins of this city. made by Mrs. J. F. Senkins of this city. This of itself is worth the admission fee, taking as it did eight years' hard labor to produce it and valued at $10,000. The management consider themselves lucky in having this opportunity of placing it before the public.

lucky in having this opportunity of placing it before the public.

One ton of pumpkins was placed on the pumpkin tower last evening. University has the credit of furnishing the largest in the lot—225 pounds.

Fifty babies are entered for prizes, and from present indications fifty more will be entered before Wednesday.

More inquiries for entries to the beauty contest were made vesterday,

Twenty-five per cent. more entries are now in than was thought possible to obtain. From the compliments, massed by one of the management upon the appearance of the young ladies it will not be strange to see him work-sulvand of the to see him vote early and often.

C. M. Wells, president of the Cham-per of Commerce, will deliver the epen ing address this evening.

> > State Rights and Treason

Our Democratic contemporary thinks that the proceedings recently started against the Homstead rioters for treaon will not only bring all the labor in terests in the United States into active antagonism with the Carnegie Company, but will also "arouse the sympathy of the whole country for the men who are undergoing this extraordinary legal

We fail to see it in that light. Ar armed assemblage of men who take forcible possession of private property; who defy the legally-constituted author ities; who place a community under their own martial law; who fire upon men that are pursuing a legitimate cupation, and who loot a vessel and burn it, come as near being in insurrection and revolt as any set of men that we know of. If this is not treason against the State, what is treason? By the same token the rioting miners of Idaho who took possession of mills and blew them up with dynamite; who mur dered people in the most cold-blooded way, defying and overriding the officers of the law, were also rebels. The striking coal miners of Tennessee who fought the State troops, captured the prison stockades and liberated the prisoners were also guilty of treason. The Democratic party has long made a great to do about State rights, and it was on this issue that the organization gave its sympathy to the South before and during the war. But the Demo cratic idea of State rights seems to go no further than to restrict Federal rights, and if its doctrine had been maintained we should have had a very weak General Government indeed Now, in dealing with such organized uprisings as those just cited, is where State rights really come in. If the real prerogative of a State is to protect the persons and property of its citizens, then the State ought to make its authority respected. It can never do this Lico it punistes those who organize and accomplish open rebellion against

it. There can be no discrimination be tween an armed uprising of working men and an armed uprising of any other probably tonguetied, else why not spell class of people. The State of Virginia hung John Brown and several of his associates for just that sort of thing, and though history has placed old John Brown among the martyrs for a great cause, it has never questioned the legality and the correctness of Virginia's course.

State rights both. We are in favor of a strong Union and of strong State or ganizations, able to deal with every mergency which falls within their respective provinces. It is time to make treason odious in whatever form pops us. Armed resistance to the authority of States is becoming altogether too common. The mere fact that a State thus assaulted puts down the insurrection by its military force and then pays for the property destroyed by the insurrectionists does not fill the bill. The men who accomplish all 'this mischief and impose all this loss upon the State should not be told in a hoppy-go-lucky way to "go and sin no more." If they thus escape all accountability for their acts, they are not only encouraged to engage in treason again whenever they con-ceive it to their interest to do so, but such an example of lax government is set that treason may even become popular. The United States cannot afford to drift into the condition of affairs which formerly pre vailed in Mexico, and which now vails in some of the South American States. We don't want semi-annual insurrections, and we need not have them if our State governments will maintain heir authority as they should.

We hope that the Homestead rioters will be punished by the State of Pennsylvana in a way that will give warning to all who may be tempted to indulge in insurrection hereafter. Every citizen should be brought to a thorough under-standing of the fact that he incurs the danger of condign punishment whenever he plots and acts with others to defy and overthrow the regularly constituted authorities. In no other way can State rights be maintained. Let the Democratic press give us a chapter on its old-time theme from this point of view.

A Realistic "Pinafore"

The people of Alameda enjoyed a presentation of Pinafore a few nights which for realistic features has probably never been equaled. pera was given on board a genuine vessel anchored just off shore. Seats for about 1200 spectators had been arranged on the margin of the bay, and a large audience was present. "Her

AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

ATRACTIONS TONIGHT.—The Los Angeles Theater will reopen this evening with that sterling player Jeffreys Lewis in the great society drama Forget Me Not. Miss Lewis: needs no introduction to the Los Angeles public, for her genius has again and again been exemplified on our stage, upon which she is a pronounced favorite. As "Stephanie" in the play underscored for tonight, Jeffreys Lewis is scarcely without a peer on the English speaking stage. She masters the part in every detail, being transformed into a she devil with the heart of a fiend, and the face and form of a Hebe. The supporting company is pronounced unlike the picture of "Columbus crossing the Delaware." "Capt. Corcoran's" solo in the second act, "Fair Moon, to Lillian Russell is a name to conjure with. Her fame as an opera comique stay is as wide as the world, for she has for many seasons been the queen of light opera in New York and other great cities of the East, where the most exacting audiences have borne evidence to her beauty as a woman and her talents as an artist. She makes her appearance at the Grand Operahouse tonight for the first time in Los Angelea, and the advance sales are convincing that her tame has preceded her. She opens in the bright creation La Cigule, which has had a tremendous vogue on the Eastern stare, and is supported by a company that it is scarcely too praiseful to say is "all stars." It includes will ham T. Carleton, who has for so many seasons visited us with his own company; Lewis Harrison, whose unctious humor has won the plaudits of local audiences in many different theatrical phases; Hayden Coffin, a singer whose art is beyond question; Charles Dungan, a young Californian with a tuneful voice; Laura Clement, a bright woman and an immensely clever singer, as well as others of renown on the stage of light Opera. Such an array of talent insures an entertainment of delicious enjoyment and ushers in a week that should fairly surfeit theatre-geers with the good things that sometimes come to us in an amusement way.

Dedication of the Church of the Unity.

An Eloquent Sermon by the Former Pastor, Rev. Eli Fay.

terniar Services at Immanuel, Congrega tional, First Methodist, Templ Churches-Notes

The doors of the Church of the Unity which have been closed to the public for two months, were thrown open yes terday morning to a congregation of not less than 1200 people. Extensive repairs have been made during the sum er and the enlarged and edifice was formally dedicated yester day. A large wing has been thrown out on the east side and provided with chairs, giving the auditorium a seating of 1200. The floor at the rea has been raised and slopes gradually to the center of the auditorium in amphitheater style, so that seats here are quite as desirable as in any other portion of the building. Opera chairs will be provided for the additional sittings, the pews in the central part of the house being retained. There are two main entrances, one from the side and ne in the rear. The design is to eventually throw out a second wing on the west side, which will accommodate 400 more chairs and bring the building into symmetrical shape, with the pulpit exactly in the rear center.

Before the beginning of the service resterday the auditorium was crowded rs and the ushers were com pelled to place chairs in the aisles to accommodate the increasing throng. The church had been magnificently dressed with flowers and foliage. Lace-like curtains of delicate asparagus fell from the windows, pepper boughs arched the doorways and cut flowers in vases were placed in every available niche. From the pulpit platform rose long-stemmed flowers, whose only color was a delicate crimson, and water lilies nodded amidst the cool green foliage.

When the great orgin, under the skilled touch of Mr. Stone, began the opening hymn, the voices of a thousand people, led by the quartette choir, rose in the song of praise, "Come Thou, Almighty King." The music throughout the service was especially fine, led by Miss Bounton. Miss Boynton. The scripture lesson was read by the

The scripture lesson was read by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Thomson, and the sermon by Rev. Dr. Eli Fay, was one of the most masterly efforts of this venerable divine. His text was from Romansiv, 5. He dwelt with especial emphasis on the last clause—"As a man thinketh, so is he," giving striking illustrations of the powers of the mind, the mother of all things. It is in science that man comes nearer to the the mother of all things. It is in science that man comes nearer to the palpitating heart of God than anywhere else. Defective thinking is at fault for all the wretchedness and sorrow and tears of earth. Rectify human thinking and from that hour you save the world from its human misery. The world and all its fullness are here because God thought it.

cause God thought it. with these preliminary thoughts he proceeded to elaborate one after the other the following propositions: First, the church is a spontaneous outgrowth of the human soul; it stands second to no other institution of civilization. Second, each great institution of hu manity is worth more than it cost-the the school, the church, the State -but the church overshadows them all It develops a sense of infinity and our relationship to it. He closed his sermon by saying, "May this church be to you a covert from tempest, a shelter from the winds, a river of water to your soul, the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

Responsive readings from slips distributed through the congregation bearing the order of dedicatory service, were then read, Rev. Mr. Thomson leading and the people responding, dedicating the edifice to the one God and father of all. to a ministry of divine and father of all, to a ministry of divine ruth to the religious education of the young to the high function of reason and to absolute intellectual liberty in connection with every subject that challenges thought.

The dedicatory prayer that followed was just such an earnest petition as Dr.

was just such an earnest petition as Dr.
Thomson always makes—eloquent from its very simplicity of diction and directness of appeal.

Before the offertory Dr. Fay made a nancial statement. The cost of the recent improvements is $3450. Of this amount the Unitarian League assumes $1500; cash subscriptions this amount the Unitarian League assumes $1500; cash subscriptions amounting to $1086 have been paid in, leaving a deficit of $864, which, judging from the liberal offerings yesterday, must have been raised. Prior to this the church debt was $12,000. During the past year the income has exceeded the expenses by about $700, and from the sale of additional sittings this year it is expected that the everplus will be brought up to $2000, which the trustees will use as a sinking fund for this debt.

At Immanuel Church vesterday morn ing Dr. Chichester delivered a and uplifting communion address. His and uplifting communion address. His theme was, "Living in the Sunshine," from Jude i, 25, "Keep yourselves in the love of God." At the opening of the service twenty-five new members were welcomed to church fellowship, several of whom were baptized. A noticeable feature of yesterday's service was the fact that nearly all of the large congregation participated in the communion. The offertory by the the communion. The offertory by the chorus choir was exceptionally fine.

TEMPLE STREET CHRISTIAN CHURCH. Rev. A. C. Smither preached to a large congregation yesterday morning from Romans xiv, 17-18.

The Jews were, at the time of Christ very ceremonial, giving much thought to the outward man. The spiritua nature was neglected. Paul attacked this phase of their nature in his sermon that day. We need to be guarding our-selves against this sin. Doing the will of God is not in outward ceremony, but doing His will in conversation and in-action. We are timid and fail to ad-monish men against sin when it is our duty. The happiest man is he who does his honest Christian duty, even though it makes him enemies. Truth always that day. We need to be guarding our-selves against this sin. Doing the will

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH. Rev. Dr. Hutchins of the First Congregational church preached vesterday morning from the text, "Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyp-tians and was mighty in words and in deeds." He said: Tomorrow morning, deeds." He said: Tomorrow morning, 8500 children with 280 teachers, will be gathered in the public schools of this city to resume their work. Not on account of the cost of these schools, though they cost us more than a quarter of a million last year, are they of so great interest, but on account of the issues centered in the children themthe issues centered in the children themselves. These children are, almost all of them, objects of prayer and solicitude. They are to hold the positions of trust and responsibility in the coming years. They are to be the fathers and mothers of the future. The teachers of Moses little realized what they were doing. Then too, our children are to be more moulded, possibly, by the companionships of the school than by those of the home.

"But who shall supervise the educa-

"But who shall supervise the educa-tion of a city like this? Those who are worthy to bear some comparison with the princess guardian of Moses. We should appoint not mere politicians, but men of the highest character and culture, who have education themselves and know the commodity when they see it. I allude, not to the present or any past board, but the ideal board. There should be one or more women on ere should be one or more women on ideal board, mothers who will take an interest in the girls in our schools Nor should they think their work small. for it is about the grandest work that is done in this world

"Then, too, how great is the dignity of the teacher's work. What honor the issues of Moses' life reflected on his teachers. The teacher deals with the subtle, ethereal soul of the child. She is revealing herself all the time, and is revealing herself all the time, and her every feeling begets a similar spirit in her scholars. Shall we set in the position of 'eachers those who most need the position or those who through their kindred can wield a certain amount of political influence? Shall we set clumsy fingers and a clumsy mind at the delicate task of teaching, our children delicate task of teaching our children of tender age? All the more necessar is it that the teacher should be all sh possibly can be, because in our popular education we are limited in the sphere of our endeavors. In most of our cities it is practically impossible to read the scriptures, but I feel less anxious about this than I do about having the right sort of teachers. sort of teachers.
"What should the public schools do for our children? Consider what Moses' education did for him. The school should not injure our children physically. Suppose the health of Moses had been broken. I would rather have our schools kept for shorter hours per day and for longer months. It is better day and for longer months. It is better that the children should be kept out of doors more hours of every day than the entire day throughout the long vacation. We ought to have in our schools more of calisthenics and less of physical re-straint. I think that the public schools should aim to develop the inquiring powers of the children. Let us fill their minds with interrogation points and the answers to them. Then we should teach our children such know ledge as shall be of practical value to them in after life. I think there should be a manual training school connected with our public school system and with our public school system, not for teaching of specific trades, for the training of the hand but for the out for the training of the hand and eye and instruction in the use of tools. It will give those boys who are to be business and professional men a sympathy with all men and a respect for mechanical labor. Our daughters should be taught domestic chemistry and how to cook a poor man's breakfast. Cooking is taught in man's breakfast. Cooking is taught in the public schools of many cities. They should understand hygiene. Our sons and daughters should be regarded as links between the generations, and be taught to appreciate the terribleness of impurity and dissipation. They should be taught reverence for labor; they should be taught to respect the man's breakfast. Cooking is taught in they should be taught to respect the rights of the weak; they should be taught reverence for their teachers, reverence for their parents and for reverence for their parents and for their seniors, and above all reverence

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH Rev. Dr. Campbell preached a very practical, simple sermon yesterday morning from the text "I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbari-ans; both to the wise and to the un-wise." religion we profess.

It was a great stroke of enterprise on he part of the Southern California oad's passenger department to arrange for that band concert at Redondo yesterday. The road was literally swamped with the crowds of people who went down to the sea to hear the music and enjoy the other pleasures of that resort. No less than sixty-five carleads of passengers were carried thither by the Santa Fé trains alone, and the Redondo railway's trains were loaded to their full capacity. Trains of a dozen coaches ran back and forth in handling the crowds and the day was passed without accident. The Democratic Congressional Committee will meet in their rooms on North Main street, when important business, will be transacted.

The Republican State Central Committee has sent out a circular urging upon every Republican voter the necessity of registration, and calling on county committees everywhere to devote special attention to this important subject. The Democratic Committee has also sent out similar circulars. Registration closes on the 24th of October, and it is urged that every voter shall be registered by that time.

During the past week there has been quite an increase in the number of candidates for city officers.

The San Francisco Chronicle of Saturday says: "There is somewhat of, a serious hitch in the proposed joint tariff debate between M M. Estee and Stephen M. White. The debates were to open in Los Angeles tonight a week in the Pavilion cannot be secured and that no other building is available in that city. Mr. Estee declines to speak in the open air, and unless a building can be secured the first meeting will be declared off. It has been suggested that the Southern Pacific Company might allow the use of the Arcade Depot for this one occasion."

The Republican State Central Committee has issued in circular form a list of the Executive Committee and nominees for Presidential electors and Congress, with their postoffice addresses. These lists can be had on application to headquarters, southwest corner Kearny and Sutter streets, San Francisco.

The veterans will meet in the Lincoln Club rooms this evening, when a rousing time will be had.

DR. WOH,

The Eminent Chinese Physician.

Dr. Woh's life work has been from early youth one of persistent and untiring ob-rvation, study and investigation, as fully as lay in his power to perfect himself in all branches of the art of healing human sickness and disease. Born in China, of influential parents. of a family whose ancestors have been for generations deservingly re fathers. In China he has practised his profession for several years, being at one time a physician in the Imperial Hospital, and in America for a long time. His great number of patients, his wonderful and many cures, and the great list of letters from grateful ness and all diseases.

For a long time I have been suffering with bladder and kidney troubles No doctoring or medicines seemed to do me good I consulted the best physicians and surgeons in Los Angeies city. They gave me morphine and drugs, but no relief could I obtain. A ter suffering sreat pain and having my passage almost entirely clogged I, four-teen days ago, began using Dr. Woh's medicines. Today I am perfectly well. I do consider Dr. Woh the most successful physician in Southern California. C. A. STELLE, 388 and 388. Main st. Los Angeles Cal October I3, 1891.

Thave tried many doctors for heart disease, but have derived no benefit with the best physician of the control of the peace. Two months ago I began his treatment, and can now certify that he has done me great good. I receimmend Dr. Woh to my irriends as an able doctor. P. E. King.

J.T. SHEWARD,

O use the mildest possible language we must say it is unfair, it is unjust to compel the lady clerks in this city to put in thirteen hours a day behind the counter, when all laboring men only put in 9 hours. It is an admitted fact that more work is secured out of nine-hour men than out of twelve-hour men. The machinery of a man's nature gives out after a certain amount of labor. Men are better able to stand the extra hours than the female employees. We close every night in the week at 6 o'clock. People complain of being unable to secure good help. Is it the fault of the help or the treatment of the help. We have good help—the very best. We believe in extending a helping hand and encourage them in good work. We believe when they do wrong to show them where they have done wrong, and ninety-nine cases out of every hundred they immediately turn around and do better than ever. Abuse never made a horse pull a larger load than kindness. A humane officer may be a tyrant in his nature, and for that reason destroys his usefulness. An editor may be a brilliant writer, but a very unwise one. A doctor may be a profound student, and his brain may overflow with book learning. His practical knowledge may be of the most obtuse kind, and for that reason he is a failure. Good, sound, practical common sense is worth more than all the smartness in the world. A good floor walker will look after the interest of his employer by extending every courtesy to his customers. A good salesman will second the efforts of a good floor walker by being polite and attentive to a customer. One will not stand in with the other. They will both do right, and they will all be appreciated the more. When a man does right, standing in with one another is not necessary. It is only when a man goes wrong, or is of no account he wants to stand in with some one. It is on this account we say we have good help. We have good help on the floor, good help behind the counter. Good window dressers, good cash boys, and in every capacity they are all better than the average. This is not flattery. It is sincerity. We believe in saying a good word for our help when they deserve it, and we believe they deserve every word we have said.

ARTISTS IN WAX.

A Novel Exhibit for the World's Fair.

Our Old Friend, the Hessian Fly and Other Insects.

How They Feed and Carry on Under the Glass.

Wonderful Artistic Skill-An Exhibit of Value-The Government "in it"-

CHICAGO, Sept. 18. - One of the most original of the exhibits which the di-vision of entomology of the United. States Department of Agriculture will make at the World's Fair at Chicago will be a series of models illustrating the work of the different insects upo different plants, showing the insects themselves in the act of feeding, and also showing the smaller ones enlarged so that their different parts can be eas-

In order that this interesting exhibit should be prepared in the most effective manner possible two artists have been engaged, whose reputation for similar work in other fields is unsurpassed. These are Mrs. E. S. Mogridge and H. Mintorn, an English woman and her brother, for many years employed by the British Museum, and who for the the British Museum, and who for the past five years have been connected with the American Museum of Natural History in Central Park, New York. The skill of these two people is something marvellous, and the methods by which they accomplish their almost startling results are original with them.

Their father was an amateur artist in Their father was an amateur artist in suburban London, and from him they have doubtless inherited their ar-tistic skill. He died early, however, and his widow and children were thrown upon their own resources. The widow excelled in the art of making wax flowers, and instructed her two sons and daughter in the rudiments of sons and dangher in the rudiments of this art, in which they soon surpassed her in proficiency. On the occasion of the first great public dinner given by the city of London to Queen Victoria, after her accession to the throne, in front of her plate the Queen saw a num-her of peaches regime more a mound of ber of peaches resting upon a mound of flowers. These flowers were so beautiful that she raised one to her nostrils to and that she raised one to her nostrils to enjoy its perfume, and her astonish-ment at finding that they were artificial and not real flowers led her, naturally, to inquire the names of their producers, who proved to be the prothers Mintorn. then 11 years of age, and their sister Mrs. Mogridge, who at that time had reached the mature age of 7!

These bright children were not long in realizing the perishable nature of wax and their inventive minds soon found a partial substitute, which they have used ever since with the most remarkable access.

They were first turned towards the They were first turned towards the modelling of objects in natural history by a commission from a gentleman who wished to preserve a group of partridges exactly as they are found in nature. The partridges were stuffed and mounted in natural attitudes by a taxidermist and the Mintorns solved the rest of the problem by accurately imitating the nest and all of the surrounding vegetation. This group was sent to the Crystal Palace exhibition in London and attracted the attention of Dr. Gunther, of the British museum, who was so struck by it that he immediately secured the employment of the artists by the museum to model similar groups by the museum to model similar groups of other British birds.

of other British birds.

The groups were realistic to the extreme of fidelity and form one of the greatest attractions to the natural history exhibit. They were seen by prominent New Yorkers, who were interested in the museum of natural history, and some six or seven years ago. Mr. Mor. some six or seven years ago Mrs. ridge and H. Mintorn were brought to New York through the liberality of Mrs. New York through the liberality of Mrs. L. Stewart, and the results of their five years' labor in the same dtrection have interested thousands of sight-seers as well as all naturalists who have visited the museum. Passing from one case to another the observer feels himself in the very atmosphere of the woods or mysske and nethod liberalists. self in the very atmosphere of the woods or marshes and not the slightest woods or marsnes and not the slightest incongruity is present to break the spell, so closely do these people observe and so faithfully do they reproduce.

Prof. Riley, having seen much of their work, especially in the way of reproducing the foliage of the various plants upon which insects feed, particularly in the collection of Lord Walsing. larly in the collection of Lord Walsingham, had been desirous of obtaining their services in connection with his work for the World's Fair. Some of the work they have done is quite striking. They have modeled, for instance, a hill of Indian corn growing in the grank luxuriance of the prairie soil; one ear bursting open shows the attacks of the corn ear worm; a leaf beyond is riddled. bursting open shows the attacks of the corn ear worm; a leaf beyond is riddled with the holes gnawed through it, while young and still folded, by the corn bill bug; another shows the ragged cuttings of one of the leaf-eating caterpillars and the caterpillar itself is shown at work. A damaged potate-stalk shows our famous friend, the Colorado potato beetle, in all stages of its growth, from the yellowish evgs on the underside of the yellowish eggs on the underside of the leaf to the handsomely-colored beetle just taking its flight from the top of the stalk. So realistic is this piece that the average farmer would instinctively look about for a handful of paris green to sprinkle upon it, while even the expert entomologist, without the most careful scrutiny, would be deceived as to their real character.

These are only a few instances of many which might be cited. Wheat plants showing the effects of the attack of the Hessian fly, apples showing the work of the coddling moth, plums with the crescent mark of the curcuito, comatoes gouged into and half destroyed by the tomato fruit worm, which, with the bead embeded is annarrable or the state. the yellowish eggs on the underside of by the tomato fruit worm, which, with his head embeded, is apparently enjoy-ing his meal to the utmost—all are done ing his meal to the utmost—all are done with the most perfect accuracy. No difficulty, however great, seems to be insurmountable. The minute differences in the texture of different leaves, the bloom upon the cheek of a peach, the almost lace-like character of many of the small flowers, are, perfectly reproduced, and with the object from which the copy is made side by side with the copy, it is well-nigh impossible to say which is natural and which is artificial.

The value of such a graphic or white. ing his meal to the utmost-all are do is the skill with which they are used the extraordinary attention to the min the extraordinary attention to the filinitial supervision of the entomologist, which have accomplished the wonderful results. The shape of the objects to be modelled is caught by means of plaster casts. Foliage and flowers are reproduced in wax-covered cloth, which has for its foundation a loosely-woven texture resembling cheese cloth. The wax coating leaves it flexible, translucent and suitable for the most delicate blossoms. From stronger qualities of this wax cloth twigs and even branches are constructed, and from a finer kind the minuter plant organs, such as the stamens, are made. For greater strength, where boughs are required, the natural branch is used. As the bark would dry and crack this is removed and the appearance imitated with a brush in a bold manner, yet so perfectly as to defy detection. utest details, and the technical supervi pearance imitated with a brush in a bold manner, yet so perfectly as to defy detection. The modeling is done with the simplest tools, and the coloring is done with water colors in the form of powder. This is all there is of the almost ludicrously simple machinery of the art, and when one compares results with means one's astonishment almost the art, and when one compares results with means one's astonishment almost rivals that produced by the accuracy of the results themselves.

A permanent exhibit of this sort apon a scale much larger than the comparatively limited space that the Chicago fair will permit would be one which could hardly be rivaled in interest. Such work as this, however, is comparatively slow, and necessarily, therefore, expensive. The funds may perhaps be found, and if so, a new and most important attraction to the visitor to found, and it so, a new and most im-portant attraction to the visitor to Washington will find a place either in the National Museum or the Depart-ment of Agriculture. GIVE THE REMAINS A DECENT BURIAL.

Pretty soon passengers on the Terminal road will be landed at the new station at Pasadena avenue. The first thing that will fatch the eye of the visitor will be the remains of what was once intended to be the headquarters of that ersishile flourishing organization of boom days—the Union Club. The building does not present a pretty spectacle and is calculated to make the average tourist stop and wonder when first they strike the town. The foundation walls are intact, but beyond this the structure leaves little to brag about except a couple of lonesome iron pillars that have stood upright all these long years. It would not be a bad idea to start a public subscription fund to obtain money enough at least to give the remains a decent burial before the tide of winter travel sets in.

"The performance given at the operahouse last night by Duncan Clark's female minstrels was witnessed by a large audience. Not a person in the audience left dissatisfied. It is a clean, clever show, anything but suggestive of vulgarity. Duncan Clark is a gentleman who has made a life study of the show business, and he now has what he considers an entertainment the people want to see. Twenty pretty women, beautiful and costly costumes, specialists, choruses, songs, dances and other features that always draw. He can return to Nebraska City next season with the assurance that he will be greeted with a full house."

SANTA BARBARA COUNTY.

Two Fires Saturday Night—The Ventura Republican Demonstration, After quite awhile without an alarm the After quite awhile without an alarm the record was broken Saturday ni. ht by two fires in one night. The first alarm sounded between 12 and 1 o'clock and an adobe house on State street just above Cañon Perdido was found to be on fire. The house was occupied as a dwelling by Chinese, and although the fire company was promptly on hand, was pretty well burned out before the fire was gotten under control. The water supply and pressure were both good, so that no complaint on that score was made this ti me.

of Santa Barbara and Pedragosa streets. It being a long distance out of town, nuch of the contents and furniture of the house was saved by the neighbors, who turned out and worked gallantly before the fire company got there. Washington fire company was on hand promptly, and it was thought for a time that the fire could be confined to the back, or L part of the house. It crept along the attic, however, and while the frame of the main house was saved, yet all the interior was completely gutted. The building was a large two-story one, elegantly finished and furnished throughout. At the time of the fire it was occupied by Mrs. Redington and a yonng son, a lad of 10 or 12 years, in one of the upstairs rooms, a young lady, a daughter, occupying another room, and a son, a young man, was sieepling below. They were awakened by the noise of the fiames in the kitchen part. Nearly the entire contents were saved, except in the kitchen part, as the fire burned very slowly, but of course in a damaged condition. It is understood there was $10,000 insurance in the house and contents. The fire is thought to have originated in the kitchen fine.

The Republican mass meeting at Ventura Saturday night was an entire success, both in point of numbers and the enthuslasm manifested. The Santa Barbara contingent aided materially in making the parade a success, and the boys returned loud in their praises of the treatment they received at the hands of the Ventura people. The meeting was largely attended and the enthusiasm ran high.

Synopsis of the Annual Report of the Grand Jury.

Improvements Suggested in the Count Jail-No Light on the Torres Lynch-ing-Accounts of Officials All in Good Condition.

SANTA ANA.

The following is a synopsis of the report of the grand jury, filed September 27, 1892:
The lynching of Francisco Torres was investigated, but no evidence was elicited from the witnesses that would arouse even a suspicion as to the identity of the guilty parties. Then follows a solemn protest against mob violence.

The books of the Board of Supervisors were thoroughly investigated, and they certify that said officers have discharge their duties with commendable carefulness. They present a tabulated statement of all allowances on hospital fund for the past eight months, and the same shows that not more than one-third of said allowances were

It was soon given out that one of the families was entirely destitute and suffering for bread and clothing. Kind-bearted people at once circulated a petition for aid and raised quite a sum of money for them, while others procured work for the head of the family. They are uneducated people, did not bring a dollar to our city and are, in reality, a charge upon the community. Last Tuesday complaint was brought by several families, who live in the neighborhood where the second lot of newcomers settled, that they were so flithy and indecent in their habits that one family had already been compelled to remove from the neighborhood, and if relief was not at once obtained, the complainants would be obliged to follow suit, as the flithy condition of the immigrants and the odors emanating from their premises rendered living near them unbearable.

County Clerk Gasaaway's Numerous Promises—A Sadly-mixed Case.
It seems that before Mr. Gassaway was removed from office he made arrangements with two different firms of job printers to print the Great Register. Gould, Hutton & Co. claim that in August, Mr. Gassaway ave them the order for printing it, and gave them the order for printing it, and they made expensive preparations for the work. Frandzen, Baumgardner & Co. claim that on August 20 Mr. Gassaway gave them written authority to prepare for printing the work and that they, too, have made expensive preparations to do the work. Each threatens to sue if they do not get the contract. County Clerk Thompson, acting under the advice of the District Attorney, declines to acknowledge either claim. Mr Gassaway had also promised the printing of the ballots to the National City Record Company, which agreement Mr. Thompson will also ignore.

"ITALIANS!

"The 12th day of October, the most glorious date of Italian history, approaches; let us celebrate it as becomes its importance; wherever a group of Italians is to be found let them dedicate this date to him whose name is written in letters of gold in the history of our country, the country of Christ piper Columbus," etc., etc.

I am sorry to have to remind the authors of this circular that, unfortunately, Columbus had to leave his fair Italy, where he did not receive the necessary aid for the execution of his plans, and search elsewhere for the support he needed. Applying to Portugal there was the same result. At last he went to Spain, and interested the Queen at once. Her Majesty sold the crown jewels and with the gold paid the first expenses, and Columbus sailed away accompanied by many of her valiant subjects. Glory and honor to Spain!

Let-ail nations eciebrate—the—day; the Italians with an added pride because their birthpiace was also that of the discoverer. As the foregoing is a part of the history of Columbus, I do not believe that I have offended the writers of the circular.

ROBBED THE WIDOW.

Gained Her Affections and Got Away With $2000.

The Rascally Trick of a Smooth Youn Man-Detectives Employed to Look Him Up-A Pecu.

Mrs. Fannie Short, a buxom widow of fifty summers and as many winters, who resides in a pretty little home at No. 619 West Sixth street, is the angriest woman in black in the whole angriest woman in black in the whole city. Not only is prospective hubby No. 2 missing, but he was unkind enough to rob the charming widow to the tune of not only a handsome wedding suit that she paid for, but also a ununit some of the dead soldiers' relatives of the dead soldiers' rel the tune of not only a handsome wedding suit that she paid for, but also a small matter of $2000 in hard cash, and a big slice of her tender heart. To begin at the beginning it is neces sary to go back to the early days of July last, and in the language of a bright private detective, who assisted a TIMES reporter in digging up the facts surrounding this most singular case, "unravel the yarn yard by yard."

Early in July Mrs. Short had for a guest an old one-armed soldier named Joseph Baker, who came here from Baltimore and lived on Temple street, opposite Olive, for a while, but on the 20th of May he moved to Mrs. Short's, where he was taken sick, and that good where he was taken sick, and that good roman became his nurse.

woman became his nurse.

He claimed to have two sisters in Washington, 7. C., but whenever he spoke of them he became very angry and declared that he would never have anything more to do with them. During, the civil war he belonged to the Sixty-eighth Regiment of Pennsylvania Infantry, Co. B. He enlisted August 11, 1862, and was honorably discharged March 25, 1864. on account of wounds received November 27, 1863, when he lost his arm.

Drs. Nadeau and Kirkpatrick attended him, and his landlady was ever by his side to administer to his wants.

That the widow proved to be an excellent nurse there is no doubt, for when the doctors informed Mr. Baker that he could live but a few days longer he drew $\chi_2$ 800 all the money he had. he drew $2,800, all the money he had, and according to Mrs. Short's state-ment he made her a present of this sum in consideration of her kindness to

The old soldier was buried on the 9th of July, two days after his death, in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

It is not known whether his relatives were notified or not, but it is very certain that nothing has been heard from them and they have taken no steps to recover the money, as is usually the case under such circumstances.

case under such circumstances.

Now for the romantic part of this story. While Mrs. Short was nursing the sick soldier she was being courted by a young man named James J. Routledge, who lived at No. 162 North Los Angeles street, who is the sure-enough villain in the play.

This fellow is described by those who This fellow is described by those who know him as being about 30 years of age, 5 feet 11½ inches in height, square build, weight 200 pounds, light, florid complexion, light brown hair, blue eyes, and wore a light gray suit of clothes and black felt hat.

Notwithstanding the fact that the widow spent most of her time with the dying soldier, she found time to fall in love with Routledge, and the two became engaged to be married.

Mrs. Short knew that her lover was without means, but that cut no figure, for she is true to the peculiar make-up

The lover needed a wedding suit, so the widow gave him an order on one of the fashiouable tailors, and as soon as the suit was built the fellow put it on and called on his widow.

During this visit he arranged in some manner to get his bands on the $2000 left by the late soldier. The widow says she gave him the money to bank for her, and he promised to take it straight down town and return with her bank book as soon as possible.

Strange as it may seem that, is the last time the fair widow set eyes on her lover. She waited until the next day, when a search was made for the missing one and that search has been in active progress for over a month and EBUSYBEE" Scrambling for Trade.

By scanning the columns of this paper readers can readily see that merchants are scrambing for trade. Each one throws out his peculiar bid for your patronage, some of which even go to the ludicrous degree in trying for business. Bunders have been committed by short-sighted fellows who now are frantically alming to right themselves. After years of sleep they awaken to the truth that the principles of business as often preached by us is the right one, and the public now hold their sides in laughter-splitting merriment watching the antics with which these fellows pose. Right Goods at Proper Prices is our constant aim, and as an example what honest me chandising can do, we point with pride at the way of our forging sheat from the smallest till now we are the largest Department Store on the Pacific Coast.
